Savannah Colonial Cemetery

Section “D”, small granite headstone fastened on east wall of “typhus section”:

In Memory of Hetty A. Poythress
Wife of
Geo. Poythress of Burke County
Who departed this life
December 24, 1818

It is suggested that George Poythress and wife Hetty (mother of John Carter Poythress) went to Savannah for a Christmas holiday where she contracted Typhoid fever and died. She was buried in the typhus section as was required by law at the time. (Source: “Some Early Epitaphs in Georgia”, compiled by the Georgia Society of Colonial Dames, Mrs. Peter W. Meldrin, Historian).

Scott/Poythress/Gross/Mills/Sanders Private Cemetery, Screven County, GA
(location off Rifle Road in Screven County) Write up below includes genealogy notes)

It is believed that this cemetery is not listed nor inventoried in either of the previous inventories of Screven County cemeteries: “Footprints in the Sands of Time” by Willie Mae Yeomans, a private cemetery supplement to prior

D. A. R. cemetery surveys covered in two volumes, 1955-57.

Restoration on a portion of this cemetery was begun soon after uncovering the gravestones and this inventory was taken 16 August, 1998. The information below transcribes text from individual tombstones. There is evidence of other graves either unmarked and or with major parts of headstones broken and missing.

The Scott stones appear to be granite, were found standing and are reasonably well preserved. The Mills stones, enclosed with a concrete block wall about four feet high, are also granite and well preserved.

The Poythress, Sanders and Gross stones appear to be made of molded concrete and show considerable deterioration. Most of these stones apparently toppled over many years ago. They were uncovered by probing in the accumulated leaf mast and humus. These stones are being repaired where broken and are to be replaced on the original sites.

Mills

The Mills portion of this cemetery is contained in a concrete block wall 4 feet in height built as an outside perimeter to what was the original area enclosed by 6” marble coping 23’ x 25’. This area contains the graves of Stephen B. Mills and his wife Fannie D. Mills, along with what may be inferred (from the text and stone sizes) to be four children lost in infancy. There are no inscriptions other than those shown.

Genealogy notes on individuals interred:

Scott

Dennis Scott was the son of James Scott b.1760-1770 d. 1832 m.1 Sarah Brunson, m.2 Clarissa Harden, m.3 Temperence Rawls). After the death of James Scott, Temperence m.2 7 Nov 1833 Lewis Powell. Son Dennis Scott married Martha Gross 13 Sep 1833. Martha (Gross) Scott (1813-1888) was the daughter of William Gross who m. Harriet Burns ca 1814.

Martha Ann Scott and Mary Virginia Scott (sisters) were unmarried daughters of Dennis Scott and Martha (Gross) Scott.

Poythress

John Maner Poythress was the son of Meredith Poythress, Jr. m.2 Susan R. Maner. Contemporaneous material states that John Poythress died in 1866 of yellow fever contracted in the War for Southern Independence.

Rhoda E. (Gross) Poythress was the daughter of William H. Gross and his wife, Harriet Burns Gross (d. 1849). Rhoda Gross married John Maner Poythress on 5 Apr 1854.

A son born after the death of his father John Maner Poythress, Horace Cullen Poythress (1867-1918) m.2 Flossie O. Wells (1878-1914). Both are buried at McBride Methodist Church Cemetery. At the present time (1998) a Poythress/Wells family reunion has been held continuously in Sylvania for over 50 years. In recent years the site has been the Meeting Room of McBride Methodist Church. Included in this group are many representatives of the historic Screven County families of Bazemore, Reddick, Austin, Godbie and Poythress.

The grave of J. W. Poythress is that of John Willie Poythress, a son of John Maner and Rhoda (Gross) Poythress who died in childhood.

Gross

William Gross (1825-18??) is very tentatively presumed to be a brother of Rhoda Gross.

Ann A. Gross is an unmarried sister of Rhoda Gross. Records indicate that the tomb of Kissiah Gross, another unmarried sister, is also supposed to be in this cemetery. Her headstone was not located.

Mills

Stephen B. Mills would very likely be the son of Stephen Mills II. Stephen Mills II was the son of Stephen Mills, Sr. and Sarah Kemp (the daughter of Solomon and Sarah (Freeman) Kemp (m. 15 Sep 1825).

This Stephen B. Mills married 1.Frances Scott 8 Dec 1868, shown on her tombstone as Fannie D. Mills and married 2.Florence Brunson. None of the names on the four infant graves in this cemetery agree with any of the ten children of Stephen B. Mills and Frances Scott Mills as listed in the History of Screven County, Georgia (pg. 226). Perhaps the case is that the SCoGaH author did not have access to the names of the four children who died in infancy.

Sanders

Hattie Poythress Sanders is the daughter of Daniel W. Poythress and Laura (Scott) Poythress. Hattie Poythress m. David W. Sanders, Jr. (b. 1874) on 26 April 1900. The gravestone of their infant daughter (b. and d. 13 April 1903) would suggest that Hattie Sanders Poythress' death three days later resulted from complications of childbirth.

"From Newingtoncross railroad on Route 24, pass North Newington Baptist Church and travel about 1 1/2 miles to first dirt road to right. Continue for 3 miles to home of Lloyd Pryor. This cemetery is back of the Pryor home in a field. The graves were placed there when the church was located there. Today practically all of the tombstones are fairly well preserved. Mr. Pryor has carefully left the graves to rest in peace." (John Robert Peavy 20 May, 1999).
